

GIRL RESCUED FROM INDIANS.

Ida Franz Found in Time to Prevent Her from Becoming Unwilling Bride.

HYPNOTIZED, SHE SAYS.

LA CROSSE, Wis., Oct. 9.—After being under what she thinks was the hypnotic influence of an Indian of the La Pointe agency at Ojibwa, Wis., and imprisoned for a week pretty sixteen-year-old Ida Franz was rescued by friends.

She was brought home by Attorney Fred Hartwell, of La Crosse, who found her at the Indian village.

The girl left her home about 7 o'clock on the night of Sept. 22. She took nothing but the clothing in which she was then working all day at a cigar factory. She did not return that night, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Franz, immediately began a search for her.

After a day's careful and diligent hunt they secured the services of Morris & Hartwell and the search was then begun in earnest.

No trace of the girl was found until last Thursday, when Thomas Beason, an Indian, secured a license at La Crosse to marry her. The attorneys immediately telegraphed to the officials of Ashland County, where the reservation is located, to stop the marriage.

Attorney Hartwell left immediately for Ashland and arrived there Friday. Accompanied by District Attorney A. P. Haugan, of Ashland County, Mr. Hartwell drove to the reservation at Ojibwa, and with Robert Sero, the sheriff of the reservation, found the girl. Miss Franz was found in the attic of a shack occupied by an old Indian and his wife, who bear the distinguished names of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Greely. They objected to the search, but when the girl was found they said that she had been living there since her arrival at the reservation, and had told them that she had had trouble with her parents and would not return home.

The girl seemed to be under the influence of some drug. She was terribly frightened and told the attorneys that she wanted to go home immediately. She said that she met the Indian on the street the night she disappeared and that he had exerted a queer influence over her. She was taken to the reservation and to the Greely home. She could not escape as she was watched. Beason, she says, was determined to marry her in spite of the fact that she did not want to be his wife. He was at work in a lumber camp when the attorneys arrived.

The officers put the girl into their buggy and started for the Greely home for the drive of twelve miles to Ashland. Beason returned to the reservation at night, and it was determined that Miss Franz had been rescued and was being taken back to La Crosse. He immediately organized a posse to go in search of the girl. As soon as the rescuers found that they were pursued they whipped up their horses in a mad race for Ashland, and his friends gave up the pursuit when within half a mile of Ashland and returned to the reservation.

Attorney Hartwell has requested the reservation sheriff to arrest Beason and hold him pending an investigation of the case.
